

Opening:

- Cartoon derpy looking goose facing slightly right
- Cartoonish hand-written text saying "Grab here!"
- Cursor is cartoon hand, with a little idle animation.

When clicked:

- Head:
 - Pats the goose: goose head pulls down slightly and looks happy
- Body:
 - Tickles the goose: Cursor changes to poke looking hand, goose looks down and moves body away, looks slightly annoyed
- Neck:
 - Stretches the goose:
 - Hand changes to fist.
 - Goose head smoothly transitions to looking up, looking alarmed with mouth open.
 - Sweat drops animate coming out of goose
 - Body points down slightly as though hanging
 - Body falls down with accurate (but slow) acceleration
 - Neck extends
 - If user lets go half way through, body and head zips back to opening position

When body reaches near bottom of screen:

- The body returns to correct orientation
- There's a ripple outwards
- 8 squares (or however long the message is) move from within the body, up the neck
- The neck looks like a neck stretched around these squares, Little Prince style

When the squares reach the top:

- One at a time, as they reach the top, they tumble out of goose neck
- Each moves in an arc, spinning
- They spell out Rey Pogue! (or any message word of any length)

When the final letter has left:

- The duck looks happy